Vineyards situation

Located in the southern part of Burgundy, at the North limit of the Beaujolais area, Pouilly Loché is a Mâconnais wine, in the heart of the great whites appellations (Pouilly-Fuissé, Pouilly-Loché, Pouilly-Vinzelles and Saint Vérand).

Characteristics

Château de Loché has a contract with Maison Louis Jadot. It is facing the Saône river (East exposure) and its vineyard lies on the three main appellations : Pouilly Fuissé, Pouilly Loché and Pouilly Vinzelles.

Pouilly Loché is produced exclusively with Chardonnay grapes. The production area is very small - 25 hectares planted on the Loché commune.

Wine making

The 1999 have been vinified in stainless steel tanks like the 2000 which are also ageing in wood. Further vintages will be vinified and aged for one year in oak barrels.

Winemaker's comments / Gastronomy

Maison Louis Jadot produces a fleshy Château de Loché Pouilly Loché with honey, nuts aromas, grapes pulp...

It must be served rather cool and goes very well with fish, white meats in cream sauce and poultry, quenelles...

Preservation

Pouilly Fuissé is pleasant to drink young, but can be aged in cellar a long time (5-8 years) to develop a superb complex bouquet.
